

We Need Your Help to Get Kids to School Safely!!!

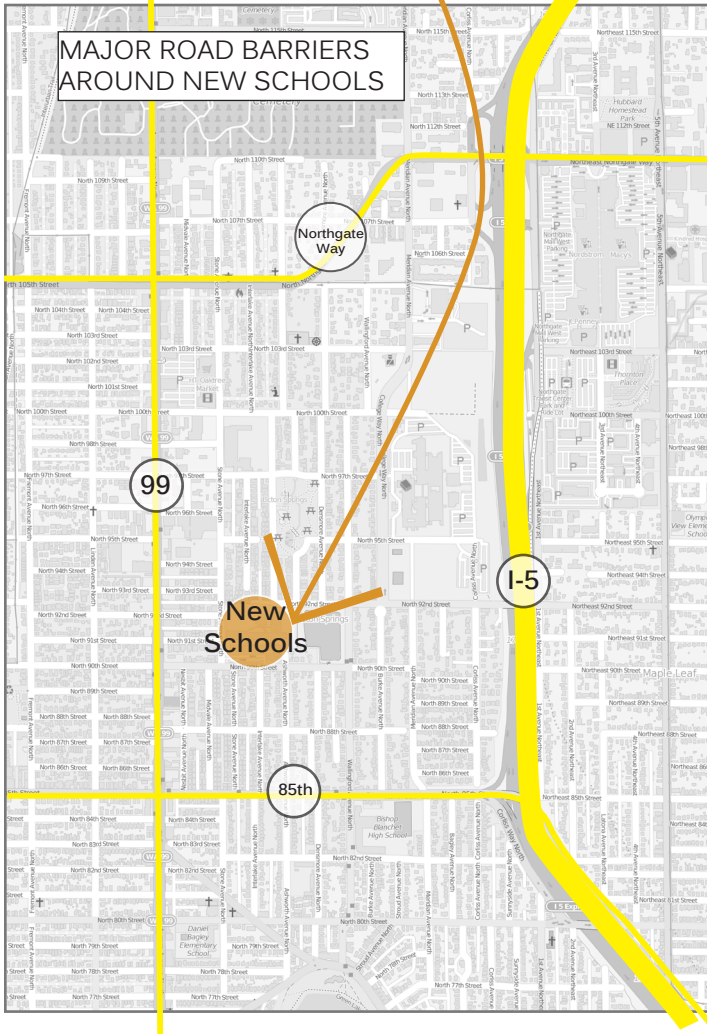

Three new schools on North 90th Street, between Stone and Wallingford avenues, will open in the fall of 2017 with 1,700 students. Access to these schools will pose challenges for many, especially for students walking or bicycling to school.

Licton-Haller and Greenwood-Phinney greenways groups are working in support of the Seattle Department of Transportation and the School Traffic Safety Committee to identify and improve Safe Routes to School for the students attending the new schools.

Take our survey and enter to win prizes!!!

https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/N_Aurora_Safe_Routes_to_School

Input from our public on-line survey of the neighborhood in January will be combined with information gathered at community meetings, and detailed walking and biking audits to create a written report. This will be shared with community members, school staff, and transportation experts, and at <http://seattlegreenways.org/neighborhoods/licton-haller-greenways/>

For additional information, please contact Lee Bruch, Licton Haller Greenways:
LictonHallerGreenways@gmail.com

For more about our Safe Routes to School efforts, check out:
Seattle Neighborhood Greenways:
<http://seattlegreenways.org/>

Seattle Department of Transportation:
http://www.seattle.gov/transportation/saferoutes_about.htm

School Traffic Safety Committee:
<http://www.seattle.gov/school-traffic-safety-committee>

